SHORT ANSWER [Each question is worth 3 points.]

Answer the following questions with at least one sentence.

37. Summarize the Marxist worldview.

Marxism is an atheistic and materialistic worldview based on the ideas of Karl Marx that promotes the abolition of private property, public ownership of the means of production (i.e., socialism), and the utopian dream of a future communistic state. [5.1]

ESSAY [Each question is worth 4 points.]

Answer the following questions with at least one paragraph.

38. How did Marx utilize Darwin's theory of evolution?

Darwin's theory made atheism a theologically viable position for Marx. If evolution could explain our biology, then God was no longer necessary for explaining human existence. But Marx was also convinced that he could use Darwin's theory sociologically to explain the progress of society. As Marx saw it, human beings and human civilizations are continually progressing. Through sociological events in human history, humanity is steadily evolving toward a single fixed point. The end goal of human progress is communism—a utopian society devoid of social classes, government, private property, and religion. [5.5]

39. Where do Marxism and Secularism agree and disagree?

Marxism and Secularism both agree that God doesn't exist; religion is harmful; the material world is all there is; human nature is perfectible rather than fallen; and socialism is the best economic policy. Many Secularists are even sympathetic toward Marxist goals. However, Secularists do not agree with the drastic measures of violence that Marxists are willing to implement to bring about communism. [5.7b]

40. Why are Marxism and violence inseparable?

In order to bring about communism, everyone must submit to the principles of Marxism. The old capitalist government must be dismantled; the clergy must submit to the authority of the state; and business owners must forfeit their private property for redistribution. Unfortunately for Marxists, the bourgeoisie aren't always willing to acquiesce. So Marxists see violence as a necessary measure for achieving the greater good of communism. According to the Marxist ethic, anything that stands opposed to the progress of the proletariat is evil. Therefore, force is always justified if brings about communism. There is really no practical way for Marxists to force everyone to comply except through violence, which is why Marxist revolutions are always accompanied by bloodshed. [5.6b, 5.8]
