In John 4:34-38, Jesus told his disciples to lift up their eyes and see that the fields were white for harvest. He told them that others before them had labored by sowing seeds for eternal life. Jesus told the disciples that he was sending them out to reap the fruit of the labor.

Essay [Each question is worth 5 points.]

Answer the following questions with at least one paragraph.

35. The New Testament teaches that we may face opposition when we speak about Jesus. Give some examples.
Answers will vary but may include that Jesus told his disciples that the world would hate and persecute them and that in this world they would experience trouble. He told his disciples they would face trials and persecution but promised the Holy Spirit would give them the words to say. When Jesus sent his disciples out two-by-two, he warned that some people would reject them. The book of Acts tells about the persecution suffered by the leaders of the early church. In their letters to the churches, Peter and John also talk about suffering for Jesus’ sake.

36. How do we prepare ourselves spiritually, intellectually, and emotionally to share the gospel? We prepare spiritually through resting in our identity as God’s beloved, confession, and prayer. 37. Explain God’s responsibility and human responsibility in the tasks of evangelism and apologetics. Possible answer: The Holy Spirit is always drawing, convicting, and reaching out to people so that they might turn to Jesus. He uses Christians to plant, water, and reap the seeds of the gospel. He gives Christians the words to say at the right time. Our job is to be ready to follow the Spirit’s leading to speak to others, and in the meantime, to live faithfully and prepare to share the gospel with others.
